Underexposed

Underexposure could be caused by the wrong film speed set. It could also be caused by a faulty light meter. Compare it to a camera with a working light meter, and see if it's working. If the light meter is broken, get it fixed. If the light meter is working, make sure you are using it correctly.